Good Morning Father Joseph,

We were blessed to have you with us at Holy Faith Catholic Church in Gainesville for the 9:30am mass yesterday. And it was a pleasure to meet you briefly after the mass.

I looked up www.aramaicproject.com, your website in the afternoon, and indeed I am impressed. What particularly captures my interest as a Christian Archivist and historian is the different groups/divisions of the project on the home page, such as Assyrian Church of the East, the Chaldean Catholic Church, the Syrian Orthodox churches, etc. For I am resolutely interested in preserving the Christian heritage and legacies of all these groups of peoples, historically. And your website opens up a window into all these groups, if time permitted. The history of Christian churches in the Middle East is my main research interest.

What I did not mention is that I am the Founding Archivist of the All Christian Archive, www.allchristianarchive.org, whose purpose is to preserve Christian heritage in all forms from individuals, families, churches, organizations, and institutions. Music in my view is one of the greatest modes of expression of Christian heritage. It can lift peoples' souls up toward Heaven. And there is more than one form of music from various types of recordings to the printed music scores.

I look forward to getting more acquainted with the Christian music heritage of Christian Musicological Society of India.

With that, I can say 'Amen.' But I'll append one more thought to this email, since it is was I mentioned to you: The Hebrew Arabic English Parallel Bible Project which I have begun to spearhead in the last couple months. Its still just getting started. Its purpose is to produce this printed work to share and teach the Biblical Scriptures to Arab Muslims. I ask your prayers for the success of this project. Later, I will set up a blog site for this Project to keep people informed, and I'll send you the blog site later.

God bless your travels and your Lenten journey.

In the name of Jesus our Savior,

Paul Wheelhouse, MSLIS, MSC, M.Div.
